Eden United Methodist Church
Willards
Public worship

1898

At the close of the nineteenth century the town of Willards emerged along the course of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railroad east of the mill village known as New Hope where a Methodist Protestant church had been established around 1870. Centered in the new town was a Methodist Episcopal congregation organized in 1898, and a Gothic Revival church was erected the next year. The ½-acre lot on which the church was built was conveyed by Ebenezer G. and Ella S. Davis to trustees, Wesley D. Truitt, Elijah Lewis, and Handy Adkins for $40.

The single-story, gable-front frame church has an off-axis entrance and bell tower similar to the Ayres Methodist Church in Pittsville. Pointed arch windows filled with figurative colored glass light the sanctuary. The Eden United Methodist Church is one of the oldest structures to remain standing in the town, and it is a principal landmark for the community with its distinctive Gothic features and its tall entrance and bell tower.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Eden United Methodist Church, historically known as the Eden Methodist Episcopal Church, stands on the east side of Main Street in the center of Willards, Wicomico County, Maryland. The single-story frame church faces west with the principal gable roof oriented on an east/west axis.

Built in stages between 1899 and the mid twentieth century, the single-story Gothic Revival frame church is supported on a low brick foundation, and the exterior is clad vinyl siding, and the steeply pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the southwest corner of the main block is a corner located entrance and bell tower. Extending southward from the main block is a tee wing and to the east is another single story gable roofed wing. During the mid twentieth century a large frame addition was built to the rear of the church.

The west (main) elevation is an asymmetrical facade with a gable-front elevation pierced by a large Gothic arched window filled with figurative colored glass. The gable end of the main block is finished with a pediment end, and the line of the lower cornice is coincidental with a cornice that wraps around the corner entrance and bell tower. The edge of the eave is enclosed with vinyl soffit. The corner entrance tower is pierced by a Gothic arched window which has a colored glass transom and a modern glass door. The upper story of the tower is pierced by open, Gothic arched openings for the belfry, which retains its bell. Atop the belfry is a tapered spire with a flared base. A wooden finial is fixed atop the spire.

The south side of the main block is largely covered by the tee wing that extends to the south. The west face of the wing is pierced by pointed arch windows as well. The south gable end of the tee wing is less elaborately finished with rectangular windows and a side entrance.

Extending eastward from the main block is a shorter single-story gable roofed wing that has pointed arch colored glass windows. Attached to the east side of the church is a large gable roofed church hall erected during the mid twentieth century.

The interior was not seen.
